

HELP FIND THE HOMERUN CURE FOR ALL CANCER.

Addie Mae was diagnosed with DIPG a “rare” inoperable brain tumor July 22, 2020. She was a perfectly healthy little farm girl, who just turned 3 years old. Addie’s symptoms came on very fast, and her tumor grew very quickly out of nowhere. She was diagnosed at Riley Children’s Hospital and was treated at Cincinnati Children’s Hospital where she participated in 2 clinical trials, and underwent 42 rounds of sedated radiation on her brain and spine. The day Addie was diagnosed we were told to go home and make memories because Addie likely only had 6 more months with us.

Addie not only battled DIPG, but she was later diagnosed with Leptomenigeal Disease. Addie was given weeks to live after her secondary cancer diagnosis, but she pushed through and fought another 4 months. Addie Mae was the epitome of a true warrior. She never let her diagnosis steal her joy. She always proved everyone wrong, and never was on anyone’s “time-schedule” but her own. After Addie gained her wings May 13th, 2021 she donated her whole brain to research to help the outcome of future diagnosed children. Addie Mae fought for us; this is why we continue to fight for her!”
